Welcome

Letter from Secretariat

Dear delegates, teachers, sponsors and presidents,

It is an honour for us to welcome you to the 17th version of the Colegio Colombo Británico's Model United Nations, which takes place in the Javeriana University, Cali. We are delighted that you have chosen to become part of such a prestigious event. We would also like to congratulate you, as becoming part of the world of MUN reflects your leadership, commitment and responsibility, and one day you might even become one of the great leaders of the future.

This year the Secretariat consists of: Juan Antonio Correa, Secretary General; Mariana Restrepo, Academic Coordinator; Juan Sebastián Cifuentes, Academic Advisor; Mariana Ramírez, Under-Secretary General and Felicity Bedford, Faculty Advisor. We have all been working very hard during the past year to make this Model as organised as possible to ensure that you will enjoy your time, both before and during the Model, to the fullest. We want this to be an experience that you will remember for the rest of your life!

This year, the main theme of our model is Diversity. We selected this theme due to the many problems the world faces at the moment because of a lack of tolerance towards other people's way of life or beliefs. Additionally, the year 2019 was declared the International Year of Indigenous Languages by the United Nations' General Assembly, in an effort to save the great diversity of languages we can hear in the world today. At CCBMUN, we believe that an understanding and acceptance of diversity helps communities to live in harmony.

It is no secret to us all that the UN has not achieved all its goals since its inception, nor has it successfully intervened in all conflicts. There is still hunger, poverty and discrimination in our world, and there are still ongoing conflicts such as ISIS and the war in Afghanistan. However, this does not mean that the UN hasn't carried out noteworthy missions, which have changed the lives of millions of children and adults around the globe. Some of these include: the peacekeeping missions in Cote d'Ivoire; UNIFIL in Lebanon; and UNICEF's Children not Soldiers campaign. At a local level, one of the most important resolutions the Security Council has voted unanimously, and which has had an impact on each one of us, is Resolution 2366, which authorizes the implementation of the UN Verification Mission in Colombia to support the peace process.

Using these success stories as our inspiration, during this Model we want all of our delegates, presidents and teachers to realize how dialogue and diplomacy can solve long-lasting conflicts. Countries and individuals must cooperate in order to ensure the acceptance of a diverse world, since preserving history and culture is one of the most important practices that humanity must adopt.

With all this said, we would once again like to welcome you to this year's CCBMUN; we hope you have one of the best, if not the best, MUN experience ever!

The Secretariat Team.

Dress Code

- 1 Based on the official protocol of the United Nations all delegates must dress in business attire during the Model:
- 2 "During the committee sessions and at the opening and closing ceremonies, all delegates must wear western business attire, or the traditional dress of the member states they are representing."
- 3 For our Model, western business attire consists of a suit and tie for men, and smart trousers and blouse for women. Traditional dress should be carefully researched, and delegates choosing this option should show full respect for the customs of that member state.
- 4 Trainers, jeans or T-shirts are not permitted. Women may not expose their shoulders or show too much bare skin; this would be considered inappropriate. This includes transparent tops, uncovered shoulders, and low cut blouses. Excessive make-up and/or accessories are not necessary or acceptable. For the safety of all female participants, heels must be less than 8 centimetres high, due to the fact that it affects your ability to move quickly and comfortably on Campus.
- 5 At all times, delegates must dress in a respectful manner that does not cause offence to other delegates or to the Secretariat. Delegates may, if wearing business attire, display subtle country symbols, for example small pin badges of the flag the member state is representing.
- 6 This dress code applies not only for delegates but for observers as well. Female presidents and directors have special dress privileges with respect to the business attire that they are allowed to wear.

Behaviour Code

- 1 During the activity students must stay on the university campus, unless they have previous authorization to leave from their corresponding supervisor.
- 2 Delegates must stay in their respective rooms while the commissions are in session. Without previous authorization, no delegate will be allowed to leave the room.
- 3 All delegates must arrive to their commissions on time; late arrivals will be sanctioned if they do not have a justified excuse.
- 4 All delegates owe respect to the Secretary General, presidents and other student authorities, and should address them in a respectful manner throughout the Model.
- 5 The Secretary General or other student authorities have the authorization to sanction any delegation which breaks the established rules.
- 6 All delegates must wear formal attire throughout the Model.
- 7 During the Event, the consumption of alcoholic substances, cigarettes or any narcotic substances is prohibited. If a delegate is found breaking this rule, he/she will be immediately expelled from the conference.
- 8 Any major damage or theft by a participant during the Conference will result in the immediate expulsion of the individual from the Model.
- 9 The use of cell phones to make phone calls or enter social networks is permitted only during recess time. During commission time, cell phones must be turned off or be left in silent mode. They may only be used for research with the chair's authorization.

Parliamentary Procedure

Language: English shall be the working language of the committee sessions including both debate and lobby time. Delegates must speak in the third person due to the fact that they are representing a country.

Courtesy: All delegates must show courtesy and respect to the Secretary General, presidents, committee staff, advisors and fellow delegates.

- The committee chair persons must be addressed as Madam/Mister President.
- Words such as 'hypocrite' and 'ignorant' are not allowed in the commission as they demonstrate a lack of respect.

Roll Call: Presidents will take the roll call of the whole commission in alphabetical order. This will be done at the start of each day and after break. Delegates who are late for this will receive a warning. Each delegation may choose the following:

- Present: When a delegate is present, they may vote in favour, against or abstain during the voting process of a Draft Resolution.
- Present and voting: When a delegate is present and voting, they cannot abstain when voting for a Draft Resolution. They must also always say 'present and voting' in all the roll calls for the topic. They can change from 'present' to 'present and voting' but they must remain this way.

Quorum: Presidents may declare the committee session open when at least third of its members are present.

- A "member" is a state which is officially registered at the conference and which is recognized by the United Nations.
- Quorum is necessary for any vote to be taken.
- For the Security Council, all member states with veto power must be present to open session.

Motion to open session: The commission votes for the session to be opened.

Motion to open Agenda: The committee votes for the order in which the issues shall be debated and in which the resolution shall be introduced.

Debate: During the committee session there are two different types of debate which the commission can vote for with motions:

- Motion for a Moderate Caucus (formal debate): This debate starts with a list of speakers who would like to make use of the floor. They will be given a period of time which is established by the chair. A motion for a moderated caucus is commonly used after the reading of a Draft Resolution; there will be a list of speakers for and against the resolution.
- Motion for an Unmoderated Caucus (informal debate): It is the most common debate used. The chair will open the floor for interventions where delegates will raise their placards and the chair will choose the speaker.

Point of Order: During the discussion of any matter, a delegate may use a point of order to complain about any departure from parliamentary procedure.

- This point may interrupt the speaker.
- The chair, without subject to appeal, may rule out of order those points which, in their judgement, are improper.

Point of Information: When the floor is open, or when a delegate has just finished an intervention, a delegate may use a point of information to ask the president or delegate a question:

- Point of information to the delegate: This is done when a delegate would like to ask the delegate who has just made an intervention a question about what they have said. The question can only have a yes or no answer. The chair will ask the delegate who is being asked if they understood the question and if they would like to answer. If they did not understand the question, the question must be reformulated. If a delegate decides they do not want to answer the question, the chair can oblige them to answer if they consider it to be important. A delegate also has the option of answering these questions using written messages.
 - Points of information can have open answers when the question is asked after the reading of a Draft Resolution, Press Release, Working Paper or a presentation which is brought by a delegate.
 - Delegates who are being asked can extend their answer by asking for this as a point of personal privilege. The chair decides whether the delegate can extend their answer.
- Point of information to the Chair: A delegate may use this point when they have any question regarding the procedure of the commission which includes time for the debate, advice for an intervention or parliamentary procedure. They can also ask for permission to approach the chair when in doubt about any procedure.

Point of Personal Privilege: A delegate may use a point of personal privilege to address a concern regarding the environment of the commission, for example, the temperature of the room.

- The chair may, without subject to appeal, rule out of order those points which, in his/her judgement, are improper.
- This point may interrupt a speaker.

Right of reply: If a delegate feels that her/his national integrity has been insulted, s/he may stand up in a right of reply.

- A president's decision whether to grant the right of reply is final and not open to appeal.
- A delegate may not reply to a right of reply.
- The second right of reply must be written to the President, and may not interrupt the speaker. The chair will consider if this right of reply is relevant.

Suspend/Close Session: When the floor is open, any delegate may propose a motion to suspend the session when it is break time. A motion to close session is the last motion of a commission in the Model once the Agenda has been closed.

Challenge to the Competence: A delegate may request the chair to allow a challenge to the competence towards another delegate if that delegate has misrepresented the foreign policy of his/her country. The misrepresentation must have been in the form of speeches or votes on important matters. Before the challenge is allowed to take place, the Secretary General must be called to the commission. The presidents and Secretary General will decide if the challenge should go ahead.

- The chair shall allow the delegate who challenges the competence to speak first. The challenger must explain in what way the other delegation misrepresented the foreign policy of his/her country, showing evidence of this in the form of a physical document, statement, resolution or a speech made by the challenged delegate.
- The challenged delegate then has the opportunity to defend his/her position.
- After both delegates have spoken, the chair, together with the Secretary General, will decide if the challenge passes. If it is successful, the challenged delegate loses his/her voting privileges for the topic. If it does not pass, then the challenging delegate will lose his/her voting privileges for the topic. In addition, every delegate representing the losing country in current UN commissions, will also lose their right to vote for that topic.

Draft Resolution Process

Working Paper

The working paper is a document which can be presented in either a Word or PowerPoint Presentation. It is written by blocs of countries that have similar perspectives on the issue and which also have good working relations. Here, the bloc must propose possible solutions for the topic being discussed. This must then be presented to the commission.

Draft Resolution Format

All the document must be typed using Arial 12 font. The title is the only exception, which must be Arial 16. The whole document must be numbered per line, including those left blank.

The draft resolution must be entitled Draft Resolution “1 or 2”. “#”, with the “1 or 2” depending on the topic being discussed and the “#” being the corresponding bloc’s number.

Immediately after the title, the bloc must state the countries that are Heads of Bloc (2) and Sponsors (Minimum 5), using each nation’s full name. This means there must be at least 7 delegations in a bloc in order to write a resolution. Next, the bloc must state the topic to be addressed, as well as the full name of the commission/committee. If there are fewer than 7 delegations in a bloc, they must write a press release instead if a draft resolution (see below).

Signing Countries (Annex)

The Annex is a separate piece of paper which must be given to the chair by each bloc writing a Draft Resolution. This paper must be signed by every single delegate in the commission with their country’s full name. Every country is obliged to sign the Annex. If a bloc fails to hand in this paper with all the countries’ names written accurately, it will immediately invalidate that bloc’s Draft Resolution.

Body

The preamble contains the background to the problem and should be kept fairly short. The preambulatory clauses/phrases must address the topic being discussed.

Each preambulatory phrase ends with a comma (,) and the clause itself must be in italic (clause).

Operative clauses are the solutions the bloc is proposing to solve the problems stated in the preambulatory clauses. Every operative phrase must solve at least one preambulatory phrase.

Each operative clause ends with a semicolon (;) except for the final clause, which ends with a full stop (.). The operative clause itself must be in italic (Clause) followed by a coma.

Operative clauses must be numbered (1, 2, 3...). Clauses may be divided into sub-clauses labeled (a) (b) (c), etc. and into sub points (i), (ii), (iii) etc.

There must be at least 5 preambulatory clauses/phrases and 7 operative clauses/phrases. If a Draft Resolution does not have to correct number of preambulatory and operative clauses, it will not be valid.

Example

In order to aid you with the creation of a draft resolution, we have uploaded an example, as well as a template of a draft resolution.

These can be found here: <https://www.ccbmuncali.org/copy-of-about-ccbmun>

Press Release

A Press Release is a document which is written by a bloc of less than seven delegates, or even by a single delegation. This is done because a bloc of fewer than 7 delegations cannot write a Draft Resolution. A press release should include: a brief explanation of the topic being discussed; the country/countries' position; why it/they are not part of any of the other blocs; and its own solutions. A Press Release is read in front of the whole commission before the Draft Resolutions. These papers are not voted on.

The signature of the head of state (president or prime minister) must be added at the end of the document. If there is a king or queen, their signature must also be included. If the delegate is representing a character, the character's signature must be present.

The format for a Press Release may be found in the following link:
<https://www.ccbmuncali.org/copy-of-about-ccbmun>

Voting Process

Voting

At CCB MUN the voting process may be done differently depending on the commission.

All draft resolutions which are given to the chair on time must be read. They are to be read according to the bloc's number.

During the reading of the Draft Resolution, delegates can send amendments. These are corrections which must be done to the format or content of the Resolution. These amendments must all be taken into consideration by the chair, and will be voted as friendly or not by the heads of bloc and sponsors. After the amendments have been made, each Draft Resolution can then be discussed in a moderated caucus.

Each delegate representing a member state of the United Nations has one vote regarding each Draft Resolution. States with observer status may not vote. Each state may vote in favour, against or abstain. A delegate who said 'present or present and voting' in the roll call may not abstain.

Once every draft resolution is voted, the chair must present the results. For a resolution to become official, it requires a simple majority (50%+1). If there is a tie or there is a majority of abstentions (even after a motion to reconsider) it will be considered defeated. Once all draft resolutions have been voted for, the voting process terminates and the Agenda is closed.

Tabling Down

To table down is when a draft resolution is not considered viable due to serious problems concerning its format or content. A simple majority of the commission must be in favour of the motion. A draft resolution may be tabled down if it complies with at least one of the following characteristics:

1. The Draft Resolution receives 10 or more valid amendments.
2. The Draft Resolution lacks the required format and structure; this includes lack of preambulatory and/or operative clauses.
3. The Draft Resolution does not accomplish the minimum requirements.
4. The Draft Resolution mentions countries in its operative clauses which are not relevant to the topic.

Reconsideration: Any delegate may propose a motion to reconsider after all the draft resolutions have been voted for. The purpose of this motion is to give the commission the chance to change their decision regarding the draft resolution that passed. The delegate must give valid reasons for proposing a reconsideration. A majority of 2/3 of the members present and voting is required for the reconsideration occur.

DIVIDING THE QUESTION

This motion is done after the reading of a draft resolution. The purpose is to separate out and vote upon some clauses that are controversial and may affect the overall voting process. These clauses may then be voted on separately. It may be done for any of the reasons shown below, and is in order when a simple majority of the commission votes in favour of the motion.

Summary Chart

Point of Order	No	Yes	Chair	Raised by a delegate to address procedural faults
